Inspiring Young Mathematician's through play

All the research tells us that we are born mathematical. So why is it sometimes so difficult to observe children being mathematical in their own play? Why do practitioners sometimes feel the need to plan focused, prescriptive activities in order to say the children in their care are learning maths or to tick a box? This inspirational, reassuring, practice affirming keynote speech will focus on developmentally appropriate practice, the power of play and the crucial role of the adult and environment in not only teaching children maths-but inspiring them to love it (and use it) for life!

With a variety of workshops including:

- Everyday Maths through everyday provision
- Mathematics Outdoors
- Shapes by The Serpentine Gallery
- Supporting Mathematics through Music- Tri Music Together
- Shape, space and measures using construction materials
- Maths & Understanding the World for more able pupils in the EYFS
